

FREE GUIDE

Why your hair is always dry

The honest diagnosis + 3 homemade recipes that actually make moisture last — Type 4 coily hair.

by Schicgirl

Your hair is not a failure

If your hair is dry, it's not because you're doing it wrong. It's its shape. And the day you understand that, you stop fighting your own head.

🌀 SEBUM NEVER REACHES THE ENDS

Every coil is a bend. Your scalp's natural oil almost never reaches your ends: they are naturally drier.

🦋 THE CUTICLE LIFTS

In sharply curved zones, the cuticle lifts slightly. Water gets in... and leaves faster than it arrived.

💔 DRY = BRITTLE

Dryness isn't what costs you length. It's the breakage it causes at the bottom, while you grow at the top.

EXACTLY LIKE YOUR SKIN

You moisturize your face without ever thinking it's "a failure." Your coily hair is the same: it needs water regularly because that's how it's built — not because you failed. Dryness is maintenance, not a defect.

THE HONEST NUANCE

Your skin is alive and repairs itself. Your hair is a dead fiber: it does not repair. That's why no product truly "repairs" damaged hair — you protect it, maintain it, and let healthier hair grow in. So the goal isn't hair that's never dry. It's hair that's supple and doesn't break.

Two minutes before you buy anything

The same recipe can save one head of hair and suffocate another. What changes everything isn't your curl type — it's your porosity.

THE GLASS-OF-WATER TEST

Drop a clean, naturally shed strand into a glass of water. Wait 3-4 minutes, without stirring. It floats → low porosity. It stays in the middle → medium. It sinks → high.

Even more reliable: your hair takes hours to dry → likely low. It drinks everything and is dry the next day → likely high.

LOW

Water struggles to get in. Gentle heat + lightweight products. Moisturize only 2-3×/week: beyond that it builds up and suffocates.

MEDIUM

The balance. Moisturize every other day, deep condition weekly, light protein once a month.

HIGH

Water gets in fast and leaves fast. Seal rich (shea, castor), regular protein, cool-water rinse.

"YOU MUST MOISTURIZE EVERY DAY" — THAT'S FALSE

It's the most repeated advice... and it breaks hair. Soaking and drying your strands every day makes them swell then contract on a loop: they get worn out, go limp and snap when wet.

Moisturize on demand, not on a schedule: tight and crunchy → re-moisturize. Limp, heavy, sticky → space it out and do a light protein. And a light mist is not a soak.

3 recipes that make moisture last

1 • Moisture mist

MOISTURIZE

For: refreshing between washes — all porosities (adjust the glycerin).

INGREDIENTS

- 100 ml water (filtered if possible)
- 2 tbsp pure aloe vera gel
- 1 tsp vegetable glycerin
- 3-5 drops jojoba oil

APPLICATION

Mist onto damp, not soaked hair, section by section — then seal right away with a dab of oil or cream.

PREPARATION

Mix everything in a clean spray bottle. Shake before each use (the oil separates).

FREQUENCY

On demand, when it feels tight · keeps 5-7 days in the fridge · cut the glycerin in dry winter air

2 • Deep moisture mask

DEEP CONDITION

For: the weekly appointment — this is where moisture really gets in.

INGREDIENTS

- 1/2 ripe avocado
- 2 tbsp conditioner
- 1 tbsp honey
- 1 tbsp olive oil

APPLICATION

After shampooing, on squeezed-out hair, in sections. Cover with a cap and let it sit.

PREPARATION

Blend until perfectly smooth — any lump will not rinse out.

FREQUENCY

1×/week · leave 20-30 min · under gentle heat if low porosity · make and use it the same day

3 • Sealing butter

SEAL

For: high porosity, dry ends, winter — the layer that holds water in.

INGREDIENTS

- 2 tbsp raw shea butter
- 1 tbsp castor oil
- 1 tbsp jojoba oil

APPLICATION

ALWAYS on damp hair, never dry — otherwise you seal the dryness in. Use little, focus on the ends.

PREPARATION

Melt gently in a bain-marie, let it cool slightly, then whip until creamy.

FREQUENCY

At every moisturizing session · keeps 2-3 months · low porosity: use the jojoba oil alone, skip the shea

THE RECAP

What actually makes moisture last

DO

- ✓ Moisturize on damp hair, never dry
- ✓ Always seal (water alone just leaves)
- ✓ A deep conditioning every week
- ✓ Satin every night, no exceptions
- ✓ Alternate moisture and light protein
- ✓ Less manipulation = less breakage

DON'T

- ✗ Soak your hair every single day
- ✗ Oil without putting water on first
- ✗ Copy a routine from another porosity
- ✗ Pile products onto dry hair
- ✗ Expect hair that's "never dry"

THE LIMITS OF DIY

With no preservative, a homemade recipe keeps a few days refrigerated — bin it at the slightest doubt (smell, color). Always patch-test on your inner elbow 24 h ahead. DIY complements a routine, it doesn't replace one.

THE HONEST PROMISE

Done well, it holds 2 to 4 days — longer in a protective style. Not a month. No recipe keeps coily hair moisturized "forever": retention is a system (seal + protect + balance + damage less), not a purchase.

GO FURTHER

These 3 recipes are a start — the diagnosis and the basics. My full guide Hydrated takes it all the way: the science of moisture, your exact routine by porosity, the weekly system, the ingredients that actually work, moisture through the seasons and troubleshooting when it stalls — 85 pages, 21 chapters → schicgirl.me/en/hydrate-type-4-hair/ ($18). A question? Message me on Facebook ❤️

THE FULL COLLECTION AT SELAR.COM/M/SCHICGIRL